Hip hop is a family, so everybody has got to pitch in. East, west, north, or south – we come from one coast…This culture was born in the ghetto. We were born here to die. We’re surviving now, but we’re not yet rising up. If we’ve got a problem, we’ve got to correct it. We can’t be hypocrites. That’s what I hope the hip-hop generation can do, to take us all to the next level by always reminding us: It ain’t about keeping it real, it’s about keeping it right.”

-Dj Kool Herc in Jeff Chang’s Can’t Stop, Won’t Stop: A History of the Hip-Hop Generation

“Hip-hop is a family, so everybody has got to pitch in. East, west, north, or south – we come from one coast…This culture was born in the ghetto. We were born here to die. We’re surviving now, but we’re not yet rising up. If we’ve got a problem, we’ve got to correct it. We can’t be hypocrites. That’s what I hope the hip-hop generation can do, to take us all to the next level by always reminding us: It ain’t about keeping it real, it’s about keeping it right.”

-S. Craig Watkins, Hip Hop Matters: Politics, Pop Culture, and the Struggle for the Soul of the Movement

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES

Hip Hop refers primarily to a mode of self-expression for urban youth culture through rap, turntableism, graffiti, and breaking. For over four decades it has evolved not only within the confines of American mainstream culture, but it has also become a global movement. This course explores the political and aesthetic foundations of hip-hop. We will trace its musical, corporeal, visual, spoken and literary manifestations of hip-hop in the American cultural imaginary. We will also investigate specific cultural practices that have given rise to its various idioms, and discuss how media portrays and ‘profits’ from the impact hip-hop and its various manifestations have had on North American mainstream society. Some of the topics that will be studied closely include but are not limited to: gender relations, cross-cultural impact of hip-hop, identity formation, sexism and homophobia.

By the end of the semester, students will:
- Be familiar with the historical, political, cultural and social contexts that influenced the creation of hip-hop
- Understand how individuals and groups that identify with hip-hop associate their identity with the development of the culture
- Understand the varying controversies associated with hip-hop
- Understand the political role hip-hop has played in the United States
- Understand the transnational impact of hip-hop
- Increase critical and writing skills

REQUIRED TEXTS (there will be other reading material available on SOCRATES)

Ptah, Heru. A Hip Hop Story.