The Honorary Degree Recipients

David George Carter, Sr.
Doctor of Humane Letters

The first African American to lead a four-year institution of higher education in Connecticut, David G. Carter, Sr. has had an inspiring career. Raised in Dayton, Ohio, Dr. Carter faced many challenges. When he was five years old, a fire destroyed his family’s business and shortly thereafter, his father passed away. However, supported by his family and two sister schoolteachers, he was able to earn a B.S. from Central State University, an M.Ed. from Miami (Ohio) University and a Ph.D. in educational administration and development from Ohio State University.

His professional career began in Dayton as an elementary schoolteacher, vice principal, principal, and unit facilitator (i.e. area superintendent). Subsequently, he spent four years at Pennsylvania State University as associate professor of education and 11 years at the University of Connecticut as professor, associate dean of the School of Education, and associate vice president of academic affairs. From 1988 - 2005, as president of Eastern Connecticut State University, he helped transform a school with limited degree offerings into a thriving institution that was designated “Connecticut’s Public Liberal Arts University” during his tenure. Assuming chancellorship of the Connecticut State University System in 2006, Dr. Carter accomplished many things, including records in full-time enrollment and international programs and increases in student satisfaction, retention and graduation rates. He retired in March of this year.

Active in national, state and local organizations, Dr. Carter has chaired the Council for Higher Education Accreditation, the Board of Visitors of the Marine Corps University and the Board of Directors of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities. Other service has included membership on the Board for the American Council of Education and as secretary/treasurer of the National Association of System Heads.

His writings on higher education have appeared in more than 80 chapters, journals and books, while his many honors include the NAACP Roy Wilkins Civil Rights Award, the Americanism Award from the Connecticut American Legion, the “Man of the Year” award from the African American Affairs Commission in 2000, and the “Torch of Liberty Award” presented by the Anti-Defamation League in 2009.

Dr. Carter is married to Dr. Sandra C. Holley.

For nearly five decades, your remarkable career has been a lesson in student-centered leadership. Believing in the importance of personal relationships and committed to the collective challenge of education, you have collaborated within and beyond academia to help generations of young people master content and develop character.
John DiBiagio’s career spans more than 35 years of service to higher education. The son of Italian immigrants and the first person in his family to attend college, he majored in English and chemistry at Eastern Michigan University and then attended the University of Detroit School of Dentistry. Upon graduating in 1958, Dr. DiBiaggio set up a successful dental practice in a suburb of Detroit, but he wanted to be an academic. Consequently, with a master’s in university administration from the Center for Higher Education at the University of Michigan, he began his distinguished academic administrative career – first as an assistant dean at the University of Kentucky and then as Dean of the Dental School at Virginia Commonwealth University.

In 1976, he became Vice President of Health Affairs and Executive Director of the Medical Center at the University of Connecticut, and in 1979 he was named President of the University.

From 1985 to 1992, Dr. DiBiaggio served as President of Michigan State University and from 1992 until his retirement in 2001, as President of Tufts University.

With what some have called his “legendary” capacity for work, he has distinguished himself as a university president with successful strategic planning, fundraising and expansion efforts. For example, at Tufts he established the University College of Citizenship and Public Service that integrates the theory and application of active citizenship in courses throughout Tufts’ undergraduate, graduate and professional programs.

As one who has had a lifelong commitment to volunteering, Dr. DiBiaggio has served as chairman of the boards of the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges and the American Council on Education, as chairman of the National Campus Compact, on the boards of the American Film Institute, the NCAA Foundation, and the blue ribbon Knight Foundation Commission on Intercollegiate Athletics.

A resident of Snowmass Village, Colorado, Dr. DiBiaggio is married to Nancy Cronemiller DiBiaggio. He has three children, David, Dana and Deirdre.

Your journey from your dentist office in Michigan to the principled leadership of UConn, Michigan State and Tufts provides a roadmap for administrators and educators everywhere.

Like the antique classic cars you so love, your career is a model of service powered by your commitment to solution-based scholarship, active citizenship and global responsibility.
Laura Dubester is one of the true leaders in the movement to foster an environmentally sustainable society. For over 30 years she and her husband, Alan Silverstein, who is also being honored today, have been actively engaged in environmental advocacy, research, education and action.

Working at the Center for EcoTechnology (CET) since its inception in 1976 and becoming its director in 1981, Ms. Dubester has helped CET become the prime resource for science-based, practical and positive environmental solutions in Western Massachusetts. From its offices in Springfield, Florence and Pittsfield, CET is a pioneer in the environmental movement with a proven track record of accomplishments.

Making environmental approaches and practices easy, affordable and mainstream, Ms. Dubester has designed many programs for energy efficiency, clean energy and waste management. In response to the oil crisis and the recession of the late Seventies, she helped launch one of the first residential programs for energy efficiency and “green jobs” in the nation. In 1976, CET constructed a free-standing passive solar greenhouse at Berkshire Botanical Garden in Stockbridge that served as a model for other greenhouses using alternative energy. Its EcoBuilding Bargains store (formerly the ReStore Home Improvement Center) sells new and surplus building materials, while its workshops, training programs and school initiatives educate consumers and students on practical solutions to environmental problems. A recent CET initiative in collaboration with Berkshire Health Systems, Operation Better Start counseled at-risk pregnant women about reducing their exposure to environmental toxins.

Ms. Dubester has served on the Springfield Materials Recycling Facility Advisory Board, the National Grid Conservation, the Load Management Advisory Board and the Board of EarthShare New England. She also is a CET Board member, trustee of the Laurel Hill Association and founding member of the Stockbridge Green Team. Recently, she received a “Lifetime Achievement Award” from the Springfield MRF Advisory Board and an award for “Outstanding Achievement” from the Mass Energy Consumers Alliance.

A graduate of the University of Rochester, she received a masters in education from Antioch College and a masters in public administration from the Harvard Kennedy School. She and her husband reside in Stockbridge.

As a faithful steward of the Earth,
you have grown a colorful garden of achievement that you tend with technologies, techniques and practices that make “green sense.”
Because of your constant care and conservation, communities throughout Western Massachusetts now bloom with programs and projects that brighten our ecological future.
Marilyn Grace Monahan
Doctor of Public Service

Westfield State is proud of all of its graduates, but some have so distinguished themselves that they are deserving of special recognition. Such is the case with Marilyn Monahan, who graduated magna cum laude in 1970 with a bachelor of science degree in education. Since graduation, Monahan has had an outstanding career in education on national, international and local levels. Ms. Monahan began her career as an elementary school teacher in New Hampshire and served in a variety of positions for the National Education Association (NEA), culminating in the state presidency. As president of NEA NH for seven years, she spearheaded teacher participation in the NH School Improvement Program, a state-wide education reform initiative.

When she was elected NEA National Secretary-Treasurer in 1990, Ms. Monahan made NEA history as the first individual from a small state association to be so elected. During her seven year tenure, she traveled throughout America, Europe, Africa and the Middle East representing the interests of teachers and children. She was also appointed by President Clinton to the White House Commission on Presidential Scholars, serving as a commissioner from 1992-2000. In 1995, she was an official US delegate to the UN Conference on Women in Beijing, China.

In 1999 Ms. Monahan began her work as First Vice President of the MBNA Foundation, which supported education in communities where MBNA America had offices. As program and events manager, she was responsible for major projects and community education events. Leaving MBNA in 2005, she consulted with the NEA on several projects, including a comprehensive plan to develop relationships with state and national foundations.

Currently, Ms. Monahan is Executive Director of Reading ASSIST Institute (RAI) in Wilmington Delaware, a nonprofit organization dedicated to improving the literacy skills of children at risk. She also serves on the boards of the National Women’s Law Center in D.C., the Saint Patrick’s Society in Wilmington, Delaware and Passionist Volunteers International in Union City, New Jersey.

As a valued alumna of Westfield State, you have crafted a career in education that richly honors our legacy.
From classrooms, boardrooms and NEA offices from New England to our Nation’s Capital, you serve teachers, students and parents alike, managing local, national and international projects and initiatives that are textbook examples of excellence.
James H. Mullen, Jr.
Doctor of Public Service

James H. Mullen Jr. has had a remarkable record of leadership and service in higher education for over 20 years.

Born in Granby, Massachusetts and raised in Holyoke, Dr. Mullen graduated magna cum laude with a bachelor’s degree in history from the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester. He also holds a master’s degree in international affairs and security from the Harvard Kennedy School of Government, where he was marshal of his class, and a doctorate in higher education from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Dr. Mullen began his academic career in 1988 as assistant to the president at Middlesex Community College in Lowell. At MCC, he also served as dean of planning, research and development, vice president for fiscal and development affairs, and executive vice president.

In 1995 Dr. Mullen joined Trinity College as vice president for strategic planning and community relations, helping to steer Trinity’s $300 million public/private revitalization that transformed the Trinity neighborhood. In 1996, he was promoted to vice president for student services.

Assuming the chancellorship of the University of North Carolina at Asheville from 1999 to 2005, Dr. Mullen brought attention to the university’s academic program and praise for its commitment to community. His tenure as president of Elms College from 2005 to 2008 saw an exponential increase in enrollment and regional and statewide partnerships that serve as models for other academic institutions.

Since 2008, Dr. Mullen has served as president of Allegheny College in Meadville, Pennsylvania. He continues to enhance this historic college’s reputation with innovative curricula and international programming. Under his leadership, Allegheny has taken a lead role on the issue of civility in American politics.

Dr. Mullen has also been a sought-after lecturer in public policy, the American presidency, history and political science. His resume also includes work as special projects coordinator for the City of Springfield’s Community Development Office.

In 2008, The School of Education at UMass/Amherst presented Dr. Mullen with an “Award of Distinction” for his contributions to the field of higher education.

He and his wife, Mari, have two children, Mary and James.

Guided by an ethical and moral compass and sustained by your own liberal arts education, you set a visionary course for each campus that you lead.

Whether at Middlesex, Trinity,
the University of North Carolina at Asheville, the Elms or Allegheny, you blaze new trails of academic opportunity which celebrate tradition, scholarship and a sense of community, while preparing students to become citizens of the world.
Alan E. Silverstein
Doctor of Public Service

Alan Silverstein is one of the true pioneers in the movement to foster an environmentally sustainable society. For over 30 years he and his wife, Laura Dubester, who is also being honored today, have used education, technology and direct services to help people to carry out daily activities with less environmental impact.

Mr. Silverstein has worked at the Center for EcoTechnology (CET) since 1978, when he was hired as a solar trainee. He has served as co-director since 1987, contributing his leadership, technical and management skills to CET’s extraordinary success.

For CET, Mr. Silverstein has designed and managed many innovative energy efficiency programs including the Energy Star® Homes program. He also helmed Leadership in Energy & Environmental Design (LEED®) for Homes program – a pilot with EPA funding assistance that helped CET encourage more widespread regional use of green building construction and design. He has produced workshops, trade shows, regional forums and events and spearheaded community initiatives. These include a home composting bin distribution project and the CET Home Heating Oil Co-op that provides bio-heat and helps homeowners to get fuel at a negotiated rate.

As a member of the Massachusetts Recycling Task Force, he also helped to develop a statewide recycling strategy. He supervised CET’s “Recycling to Build Community” in partnership with the Corporation for National Service – a collaboration for which CET has served as host to more than 16 AmeriCorps VISTA members.

Mr. Silverstein’s public service has included board membership for MassRecycle and WasteCap of Massachusetts, the Energy Federation, Inc. and CET. As a founding member of the Stockbridge Green Team, he has co-chaired the 11th Annual National Recycling Congress in Boston and the Non-Profit Recyclers Council of the National Recycling Coalition.

In 2010, Mr. Silverstein received a “Lifetime Achievement Award” from the Springfield Massachusetts Recycling Facility Advisory Board and an award for “Outstanding Achievement” from Mass Energy Consumers Alliance. He is a graduate of American University with a B.A. in history and lives in Stockbridge with his wife.

As an inspired advocate for a cleaner, more sustainable society, you confront inconvenient truths and environmental challenges with practical and affordable solutions that make a difference. Committed to enlightened action, energy efficiency and renewable energy, you engage communities and educate citizens by making green sense make sense and encouraging us all to reduce, reuse and recycle.
Despite her 24 years of age, Collins Tuohy has become a bright light in philanthropy and as such, is a role model for Westfield State University students. Her story and that of her brother, Michael Oher, current offensive linesman for the Baltimore Ravens, is chronicled in the New York Times bestseller The Blind Side: Evolution of a Game and in the award-winning film “The Blind Side,” starring Sandra Bullock.

Collins first met fellow student Michael Oher in the hallways of Briarcrest Christian School in Memphis, Tennessee, when he was a 6-foot, 4-inch 340-pound, African American sophomore, living in public housing with his crack-addicted mother. Subsequently, Michael was taken in by Collins’ parents, a wealthy white Memphis entrepreneur and his interior designer wife, who later adopted the young man.

Ever the supportive sister, Collins helped Michael to adapt to Briarcrest and to adjust to his new life in the Tuohy household. With the Tuohys’ support, Michael was able to succeed in school, growing into a star athlete, pursued by football scouts throughout America and chosen as a first-round pick for the Ravens at the 2009 NFL draft in New York.

Collins earned her bachelor’s degree in broadcast journalism from the University of Mississippi. An exceptional student, she was the president of the Student Alumni Council, president of Student Spirit Committee, an officer for the Kappa Delta Sorority and varsity cheerleader.

After “The Blind Side” set a record for the top opening weekend for a sports film and earned more than $260 million at the box office, the Touhy family established the Making It Happen Foundation to help deserving underserved youth.

As a board member of the Foundation, Collins now tours the country, telling her story and supporting the charity’s many projects. She has also contributed to the book, In a Heartbeat: Sharing the Power of Cheerful Giving. Michael Oher has collaborated with Don Yaeger on his own memoir, I Beat the Odds: From Homelessness, to the Blind Side, and Beyond in which he credits the grace and love of the Tuohys for his success.

With its hopeful message that miracles can happen in a heartbeat,

when good people act with grace,

you share your family’s story of Michael Oher.

Carrying forth a legacy of love,

you remind us that every child deserves the opportunity to succeed
and that by generously reaching out through relationships we can make a difference in the lives of others.

Graduation Honors

A student who achieves an outstanding cumulative grade point average is eligible to graduate with honors, as follows:

Cum Laude: 3.30 to 3.59
Magna Cum Laude: 3.60 to 3.79
Summa Cum Laude: 3.80 or better

Students must have completed a minimum of 60 credit hours at Westfield State University to be eligible for graduation honors. For purposes of determining honors eligibility, a cumulative quality point average is calculated on all courses accepted in transfer, as well as all Westfield State University courses.

Westfield State University began in Barre, Massachusetts in 1838 as “one of the most important educational experiments in American history: the development of the normal school to provide teachers for the common schools of the mid-nineteenth century.”*

On that first day, twenty pupils—twelve women and eight men—gathered in the new town hall to begin a revolutionary project: free, public higher education for the citizens of the Commonwealth. In this, the first public, coeducational normal school in America to offer an education without barrier to gender, race or economic class, all of the nation’s ideals would be caught up. An enlightened citizenry was seen as the necessary base for the democratic experiment being worked out in the new nation. A trained force of teachers was essential to prepare the country’s youth to take on the responsibilities inherent in the freedoms guaranteed under the Constitution. Thus Westfield was to become one of the models for the normal school idea which would spread across the nation and much of the world.

But this dream had humble origins. In two years at Barre, 160 students were taught with limited resources. The first principal and primary faculty member, Dr. Samuel P. Newman of Bowdoin University, also kept all records, supervised the dormitory—and acted as janitor.

In 1844 the Board of Education voted to move the Barre school to Westfield, where for some time civic leaders had sought a college for their community. The Normal School thrived in its new setting. Faculty and graduates went on to found and staff comparable institutions across the country. In the 1870s, the Japanese government sent a prince to study at Westfield so that its practices could be emulated in Japan. Although its primary mission was the preparation of teachers, Westfield Normal School graduates entered careers as diverse as medicine, law, publishing, the ministry, and government service. In the words of Dr. Robert Brown, “For those pupils with ambition and a bit of luck, it became the gateway to new lives.”*

Westfield’s distinguished alumni include George B. Cortelyou, who became the first U.S. Secretary of the Treasury; Nettie Marie Stevens, who discovered the X and Y chromosomes; and Eduardo C. Robreno, the first Cuban-American federal court judge. In 1847, the alumni association was born when the first graduates gathered for a reunion in Westfield. National figures gave speeches, the local newspaper saturated its pages with coverage, and “ladies of the village” prepared a feast for all. This tradition of linking the University and community continues through community service programs, education partnerships, and cultural events.

In the 1930s, the Normal School became a State Teachers College, and a four-year course of study was instituted, leading to the bachelor of science in education. Soon thereafter, alumni and citizens of Westfield led the hundreds of advocates who helped deflect proposals to close public teachers colleges.

After surviving this threat, the College again saw a period of growth, moving from the building which is now Westfield’s City Hall to the current campus, dedicated in 1956. In the 1960s the state authorized the bachelor of arts degree as an alternative to the teaching program. As enrollment quadrupled between 1960 and 1967, the College added new buildings, and instituted continuing education and graduate programs. In 2010, the College, along with its sister institutions within the Commonwealth, became part of the State University System, and is now Westfield State University.

In recent years, the University has instituted pacesetting programs, such as the Westfield River Environmental Center and the Center for Teacher Education and Research, and encouraged academic success through the First Year Experience and Honors programs. New facilities include the Banacos Academic Center, home to three academic resource programs including Westfield State’s Tutoring Center, Disability Services and the Learning Disabilities Program; New Hall, an apartment-style residence hall on campus, and Landsdowne Place, apartment-style housing in downtown Westfield. A revitalized emphasis on international programs is widening the University’s horizons by sending our students to study in other countries, and inviting students from around the world to study at Westfield State.

Westfield State’s mission continues to emphasize the educational ideals alive at its foundation: broad intellectual growth, service learning, and invigorating preparation for graduate school and professional careers. A strong tradition of opportunity, aspiration, and transformation continues to energize our faculty and students.

*The Rise and Fall of the People’s University: The Westfield Normal School, 1839-1914 by Robert T. Brown, retired professor of history, and original director of the Raymond G. Patterson Alumni Archive. These notes are adapted from his previously published writings on the University’s history.
The origin of academic ceremonial attire dates back to the 12th and 13th centuries, when universities were beginning to take form. Academic robes resemble religious vestments not coincidentally, because medieval students and teachers were usually also clerics. There was a practical basis for the design of the clothing as well: long dark gowns provided warmth in the unheated buildings of those times, and hoods served to cover tonsured heads.

In the days of Henry the VIII of England, Oxford and Cambridge Universities began prescribing a definite academic dress, down to minor details. Today, European academic attire varies widely, but institutions in the United States have opted for standardization. An intercollegiate commission made up of representatives of leading institutions adopted a code of academic dress in 1895, regulating cut, style, and materials of the gowns, and assigning colors to represent different fields of learning. Since then, the code has been periodically revised by the American Council on Education.

“Tams” are for doctoral and MFA degree holders only. All other graduates wear the black caps called mortarboards. There is no general rule for the position of the tassel on the mortarboard; however, at some institutions there is a custom of shifting the tassel from the right side to the left at the moment when degrees are awarded. Sleeve styles on the gowns vary according to the degree of the wearer: bachelor’s degree gowns have pointed sleeves, master’s degree gowns have oblong sleeves, and doctoral gown sleeves are bell-shaped. Hoods are lined with the official colors of the university conferring the degree, and the trimming color indicates the subject to which the degree pertains. Here are some examples of colors you might see on the attire of faculty at today’s Commencement ceremony:

- Blue-Violet: Regional Planning
- Brown: Fine Arts
- Citron: Social Science, Social Work
- Copper: Economics
- Crimson: Communication, Journalism
- Dark Blue: Philosophy, Political Science
- Drab: Business, Accounting
- Gold: Mathematics, Environmental Science
- Light Blue: Education
- Pink: Music
- Purple: Law
- Russet: Environmental Studies
- Sage Green: Movement Science, Health and Rehabilitation
- Scarlet: Theology
- White: Arts, Letters, Humanities
Welcome to the Alumni Association

Congratulations on the completion of your degree at Westfield State University! With this ceremony, you join a special group of well-educated individuals who represent our University’s commitment to excellence, academic success, and global awareness. Your Westfield diploma entitles you to be a part of the distinguished history of this ground breaking institution.

Where you go, so does this campus. And wherever you go, remember that you are always welcome to “come home” again by becoming involved with our activities, events and programs, both on and off campus. Upon graduation, you automatically become enrolled in our Westfield State Alumni Association making it easy for you to stay connected to campus no matter where your life takes you. We encourage you to keep your contact information up-to-date, join our Westfield State Alumni Facebook group and fan page, continue your professional connections with our LinkedIn group and finally, stay involved by joining the Alumni Council or a committee! These are just a few of the ways to stay connected with your Westfield friends, to hear the latest Westfield news, and to take advantage of the many opportunities the Westfield State Alumni Association makes available to you. If you are interested in running for office or serving on a committee, please contact Kathi Bradford, Director of Alumni Relations, at kbradford@wsc.ma.edu.

If time is tight right now, please consider making a financial gift to benefit future students like yourself. We have many scholarships in place to support students among our various programs and majors. If you received a scholarship or other financial support then you know what a difference even a small donation can make. Please go to www.westfieldalumni.org/westfieldfund for more information.

Please stay in touch, send updates to your contact information to Dave LaRocque at dlarocque@wsc.ma.edu or by phone, 413-572-8356. We look forward to seeing you in the fall at Homecoming 2011 on October 29. Again, congratulations!

Westfield State University “Golden Owls”

Westfield State University continues the tradition of honoring our most loyal alumni.

Each class celebrating its 50th year anniversary is invited to attend Commencement to be welcomed into the Golden Owls, a special new society at Westfield State. The Golden Owls are those graduates who are uniquely committed to supporting the University and to embracing their connections with each other and with Westfield graduates for years to come.

Today, we welcome the return of alumni who are celebrating 50 years or more since their own commencement day. These distinguished alumni are the representatives of our history and the stewards of our future, they are proud to take to heart the Golden Owls Pledge. We congratulate them and look forward to their leadership within the alumni family.

Westfield State University Golden Owls Creed

Going forth from Westfield into the world, fulfilling the promise
Of our knowledge and ideals, we pledge to share the Legacy of learning and understanding, creating and connecting,
Derived from our educational experience at this University.
Each of us will, in our distinctive ways, strengthen our bond with alumni
Near and far, and with the campus that remains our home.
Opening up new possibilities, cherishing memories,
We keep the spirit and heritage of Westfield alive.
Let us lead the way for all graduates to come, and Serve, proudly and gladly, our university and our community.

Weather Evacuation Plan

In the event of a weather emergency, an announcement will be made from the podium for graduates, guests, faculty and staff to reconvene at six different locations on campus 30 minutes from the time of the announcement. Most of the Platform Party will move to the Ely Television Studio, as outlined below, to broadcast the first part of the Commencement program to the five other locations. When the televised ceremony is concluded and degrees conferred by the pronouncement and gavel of the Chair of the Board of Trustees, students in each location will process to the front of the room where their names will be announced and congratulations offered.

1. ELY TELEVISION STUDIO – The Platform Party (except for those named below) will move to the Television Studio to proceed with the first part of the ceremony, including remarks from the Commencement Speaker.

2. ELY – Communication and Criminal Justice majors, faculty and guests, with Vice President of Student Affairs and Dean of Diversity and Affirmative Action.

3. DEVER HALL and STAGE – Education, Ethnic and Gender Studies, Liberal Studies and Spanish majors, faculty and guests, with Vice President of Enrollment Management and Dean of Education.

4. WILSON AUDITORIUMS – Economics and Business Management majors, faculty and guests, with the Dean of the Division of Graduate and Continuing Education.

5. SCANLON BANQUET HALL – Art, English, History, Music, Political Science, Social Work, and Sociology majors, faculty and guests, with Vice President and Associate Vice President of Advancement and University Relations.

6. DINING COMMONS – Biology, Chemistry, Computer and Information Science, Environmental Science, General Science, Mathematics, Movement Science, Psychology, and Regional Planning majors, faculty and guests, with Dean of Faculty and Dean of Students.
