NOTES ON ACADEMIC REGALIA

The origin of academic ceremonial attire dates back to the 12th and 13th centuries, when universities were beginning to be established. Academic robes resembled religious vestments because medieval students and teachers were often members of the clergy. In 1895, an intercollegiate commission of representatives from leading institutions in the United States adopted a code of academic dress. The code regulated the cut, style, and fabric of the gowns, and assigned distinctive colors to represent different fields of study. Since then, the code has been periodically revised by the American Council on Education.

Tams are worn by doctoral and master's of fine arts degree holders only. All other graduates wear black caps called mortarboards. Sleeve styles on the gowns vary according to the degree of the wearer. Bachelor's degree gowns have pointed sleeves; master's degree gowns have oblong sleeves; and doctoral degree gowns have bell-shaped sleeves. Hoods are lined with the official colors of the university conferring the degree, and the trimming color indicates the subject to which the degree pertains. Here are some examples of colors you might see today:

Blue-Violet	Regional Planning
Brown	Fine Arts
Citron	Social Science, Social Work
Copper	Economics
Crimson	Communication, Journalism
Dark Blue	Philosophy, Political Science
Light Brown	Business, Accounting
Gold	Mathematics, Environmental Science
Light Blue	Education
Pink	Music
Russet	Environmental Studies
Sage Green	Movement Science, Health and Rehabilitation
White	Arts, Letters, Humanities

Appearance of a name in the Commencement program is presumptive evidence of graduation and/or participation, but is not conclusive. The official transcript, sealed and signed by the Registrar, exclusively and definitively confirms the student's academic record and possession of degree(s) awarded by Westfield State University.

ALMA MATER

by M. Ruth Reavey '35 and Louise Hagen Lane '33

Westfield alma mater,
We salute and honor thee.
Thy loved name instills in us
Thoughts of hope and victory.
Through the years that are before us
May we keep within our hearts
Mem'ries inspirational
That thy proud name imparts.
Westfield, we are loyal to thee –
Westfield, alma mater!
