

Direct Disclosures - When a program does not meet a student's home state's requirements

Dear Prospective Student,

Westfield State University regrets to inform you that our program does not meet your state's requirements for professional licensure in this field. You may still enroll in this program, but you should be aware that it does not satisfy your state's professional licensure standards. If you have any questions, please contact the Westfield State's professional licensure contact for this program and this field of licensure.

Sincerely,
Westfield State University

Direct Disclosures - When an institution has not made a determination whether a program meets a student's home state's requirements

Dear Prospective Student or Enrolled SARA Student,

Please note, Westfield State University has not determined whether our program meets your state's requirements for professional licensure in this field. Before enrolling, you should contact the professional licensure agency in your state that oversees this field to determine whether this program will satisfy your state's requirements for professional licensure.

Your state's professional licensure agency for this field is:

agency name agency address agency phone number agency email address agency website

If you have any questions, please contact Westfield State's professional licensure contact for this program and this field of licensure.

Sincerely,
Westfield State University